Puppy Meals

We feed and have been feeding our puppies Purina Puppy Complete for many years. It's a great food and our puppies thrive on it. We ask that all our puppies that transition to new homes stay on this food until they are at least 6 months old.

It's also so easy to find as most all dog supply stores, local quick shops also carry this food.

This food is always included in each puppy go home packs to ensure they have available meal for day or two until new puppy parents get chance to get it for them.

For those who choose to switch puppy feeds, then we ask you to gradually add your preferred food to the Purina Puppy Complete to slowly wean them off and onto a new brand. This will help prevent irritable bowel syndrome.

Prepare Puppy Meals

We give and recommend all puppy families to continue giving puppies softened meals. To do this just add warm water to dry kibble and allow it to soak until soft. Usually around 20 minutes. The reason we do this is to ensure the puppy does not accidentally gets choked on dry kibble. We continue wet meals for ours until they are at 5 months old.

Meal Additives

We like to ensure our puppies are getting protein and calcium in addition to their puppy food. Especially calcium as it's needed while they are teething. Teething causes ears to go down so the added calcium helps get those ears back up again.

The holistic foods we mix in with wet kibble are:
Scrambled eggs, lean ground beef (cooked/drained/crumbled), pumpkin, cottage cheese, whole plain yogurt and powdered goats milk. We only add one of these into meals at the time and not even on every day.

Foods to Avoid

Never give puppies or dogs human prepared meals that are seasoned. Also a lot of foods humans eat can be toxic to our beloved dogs. We also have not had very good luck giving canned puppy food to our babies as it seems to cause irritable bowels syndrome.
